INTRODUCTION

From June to September of 1999 a major survey of visitors was undertaken by the Yukon Bureau of Statistics on behalf of the Yukon Government's Department of Tourism. This survey, referred to as the Visitor Exit Survey (VES), sought answers from visitors on a wide variety of questions relating to their Yukon visit. A comparable survey was run in 1987 and 1994. Many of the results in the 1999 survey are compared to results from the 1994 survey in this report.

The VES was administered to visitors as they left the Yukon for the last time.

A brief report on the preliminary results of the VES was released in the fall of 2000. Preliminary results from the regional visitor exit survey were also released in the fall of 2000.

The current report will focus specifically on the results of the regional visitor exit survey administered in the Teslin region (one of nine Yukon tourism regions) in conjunction with the VES. Other reports will cover the eight remaining tourism regions: Campbell, Carcross/ Southern Lakes, Klondike, Kluane, North Yukon, Silver Trail, Watson Lake, and Whitehorse.

In addition to further regional reports, an overall Yukon summary will be prepared as well as a technical paper describing the methodology used in the survey.

A SPECIAL NOTE ABOUT THE SURVEYS

This report on the Teslin region is based on the results of the regional surveys administered as part of the 1999 Visitor Exit Survey (VES).

A regional visitor was defined as a non-resident who made at least one stop in the region. A non-resident who travelled through a region without stopping was not counted by the survey as a regional visitor. A stop could have been as brief as gassing up at a local service station or stopping at a visitor reception centre, or could have been as long as staying over in the region for several nights. A stop could also have involved leaving the region and returning to continue the visit. For example, Mr. and Mrs. Smith from Houston, Texas travelled to the Yukon in June, 1999. They arrived in the Klondike region, Dawson City to be exact, and stayed for three nights, leaving to travel over the Top of the World Highway to various destinations in Alaska. In late July they returned to the Yukon on their way home via the Alaska Highway, stopping briefly in the Kluane region at Beaver Creek, Destruction Bay and overnight in Haines Junction, before arriving in Whitehorse for a stay of two nights. They then departed the Yukon via the south Klondike Highway through Carcross on their way to Skagway and ferry service to the south. For the purpose of the Klondike regional survey they were counted as a party of two, who visited the Klondike region once for a total stay of three nights. Since the Smiths made several stops and stayed overnight in Haines Junction before their two night stay in Whitehorse, they would also have been counted as visiting both the Kluane and Whitehorse regions.

The report released in October of 2000, 1999 Visitor Exit Survey Preliminary Summary, presented statistics from the Visitor Exit Survey (VES). This survey was administered to visitors as they left the Yukon for the last time. Results from the VES showed that between June and September of 1999, 232,766 visitors came to the Yukon. However, most visitors to the Yukon, such as in our example above of the Smiths from Texas, visit and stop in more than one Yukon tourist region. These visitors, or 'shared customers', were counted by the regional VES in each region visited. The regional surveys show that the 232,766 Yukon visitors counted by the VES as they left the Yukon for the last time, made approximately 530,000 'stops' in total to all of the nine Yukon visitor regions.

The focus of each of the regional reports therefore will be on the number of tourists who visited the region - who they were, where they came from, how much they spent, what they did in the region, where they stayed, how they 'got around' and how they evaluated the local services and attractions.
